Hey guys, posting here since I've seen people discuss all sorts of real life issues, so maybe someone has dealt with this too. Recently I was checking my FAB credit card statement and noticed a few charges that I honestly don't remember making. They are not big purchases like fuel or online orders, more like small amounts that appear between my usual spending. At first I thought maybe I just forgot, but even after going through everything carefully, a couple of them still don't add up. I started wondering if these could be some kind of hidden fees or charges that come with the card, maybe something I missed when I first got it. The descriptions are not very clear either, so it's hard to figure out if it's interest, service fees or something else. At the same time, I've been trying to keep track of my salary account in FAB to make sure I'm not overspending because of this. But sometimes I'm not fully sure if the balance I'm seeing is updated correctly, especially after payments from the credit card side get adjusted. So just wanted to ask if anyone here has gone through something similar with FAB credit card charges and figured out what those extra amounts usually are. And also, what's the easiest way you guys double check your salary account balance so you know exactly where you stand? Appreciate any help or advice.
