<https://www.globalblogherenow.com> Supermodel Coco Chiang, with her naturally model-like frame, can eat whatever she wants without gaining weight. Married to jewelry designer Dickson Yung, she has a son and a daughter, and her figure and appearance have remained unchanged for over a decade. Recently, Chiang posted a bikini photo on social media, creating a short video titled "Countdown to Post-New Year Weight Loss!" She wrote: "Swimsuit ready, summer's star is here! It's time to slowly metabolize the calories accumulated over winter. No need for extreme dieting or high-intensity training; just a little cardio every day, combined with simple core exercises, and your body will give you the most honest response. It's not about conforming to anyone's aesthetic; I just want to feel more comfortable wearing the clothes I like this summer. The earlier you start, the more relaxed you'll be when summer arrives. What are your body goals for this year? Set a flag and come back in summer to see the results!" She also tagged "body management" and "fitness is worse than seeing others," determined to embark on a major weight loss campaign.
