Improving the acoustics of an audio recording studio space can be achieved through a mix of absorption and diffusion using common household items and purpose-built solutions. Many everyday items can effectively absorb and diffuse sound waves, such as rugs and carpets, thick curtains, soft furniture, bookshelves, blankets and towels. For purpose-built acoustic treatments, consider investing in acoustic panels, bass traps, and diffusers. Also, make sure to seal gaps to minimize external noise & optimize the sound you capture, and position your microphone and speakers strategically.
